Hello and welcome to the latest Spring newsletter. What's new? The launch of the IIBI (Institute of Islamic Banking & Insurance) website means we can reveal the identity we developed for the UK's foremost authority on Islamic finance. And Harper Collins / Angry Robot commissioned us to do a whole host of lovely book jackets – so we've had plenty of excuses to sit up late and read some gripping stuff. Also we can finally show you what we've been up to with WGSN, the global leaders in style trend analysis.

Corporate Identity Institute of Islamic Banking and Insurance

We re-branded the UK's leading authority on Islamic banking and insurance. The three crescents represent the three aims of the IIBI: education, promotion and implementation of Islamic banking and insurance practices.

Book Jacket Angry Robot / HarperCollins

Amortals is the first in a series of sci-fi titles for Matt Forbeck and the first in raft of titles that Spring has been commissioned to design for Angry Robot – an imprint of HarperCollins. Our brief was to create a cover that simply said “blockbuster”.

Concept denim packaging Autumn Winter 09/10 :: WGSN

Three Autumn/Winter concepts explore the themes of Nice, Invincible and Future Imperfect. By now you will have seen some of the denim packaging concepts filtering down to the High Street by now – of course you shop at all the fashionable stores.
